(Paper No. 86)

*3962 INDIGENOUS INCARCERATION RATE—Ms Sonia Hornery asked the Minister for Corrections, Minister for Emergency Services, and Minister for Veterans Affairs—

Following the release of the 2016 'Closing the Gap' report, what is the Government doing to reduce the indigenous incarceration rate?

Answer—

The Government recognises that Aboriginal offenders continue to be over-represented in custody. Corrective Services NSW (CSNSW) has developed a strategic plan to support Aboriginal offenders to desist from re-offending and to reduce their rate of incarceration. This involves focusing on education and vocational training, and employment.

- CSNSW has several programs which are specifically intended for Aboriginal offenders. They include the Balund-a Program; the Gundi Program; the Yetta Dhinnakkal Program; the Girrawaa Program and the Nura Warra Umer Program. Details regarding these programs are available on the internet.
- Funding has recently been received as part of the Reducing Re-offending Strategy to establish 10 high intensity units that will deliver rehabilitation programs to inmates serving short sentences. Aboriginal offenders will be prioritised to these units which will be spread across a number of correctional centres.
- The CSNSW Aboriginal Advisory Council provides a forum for CSNSW to engage with Aboriginal people of significant standing in the community, and with professionals with expertise related to social justice, as well as the legal and health care systems.
- CSNSW also collaborates with a number of other agencies in its efforts to reduce the rate at which Aboriginal people are incarcerated. These include:
  - the Eden Local Aboriginal Lands Council which manages the Bundian Way Project
  - Redfern Local Area Police Command and the Redfern Community regarding the Never Going Back Program for Aboriginal male inmates
  - the Aboriginal Housing Office
  - a number of Aboriginal organisations in the community which run post-release support programs such as Tribal Dreaming (New Horizons) and the Muru Program.

Juvenile Justice also has a number of programs and initiatives to address the overrepresentation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young people in custody.

- The Youth on Track early intervention scheme provides family-based intervention and support to young people who are at risk of long-term involvement in the criminal justice system.
- Other initiatives include the provision of therapeutic interventions to address offending behaviour; Dthina Yuwali, a drug and alcohol program; the My Journey, My Life program which aims to reduce the incidence of inter-generational violence; access to educational programs, and opportunities for young offenders to participate in driver safety education programs and to obtain their driver licence.
- To maintain connections with family and country, young offenders are held in custody close to their home, where possible. They also have access to local elders and community members who visit centres to run cultural programs and provide mentoring to young offenders. All Juvenile Justice centres have an Aboriginal Consultative Committee which includes local community groups and elders who visit centres regularly to engage with young offenders and provide them and staff with cultural guidance.
- Juvenile Justice recognises that by recruiting and retaining Aboriginal staff, it will develop a better capacity to work with Aboriginal young people. Approximately 12.6 per cent of the total Juvenile Justice workforce identifies as Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander.

Local health districts wishing to undertake bariatric surgery must have appropriately contracted and credentialed clinicians that have approval to undertake this procedure by the local new interventions assessment committees (or equivalent). Bariatric surgery is not considered as a discretionary or cosmetic procedure as per the Waiting Time & Elective Surgery Policy PD2012_11 (pages 4-8).

Patients wishing to access bariatric surgery in the public health system are required to attend a designated multidisciplinary bariatric clinic. Patients are considered for bariatric surgery following assessment and approval from the multidisciplinary team after all non-surgical options have been exhausted.

- (3) Why has this change occurred?

Answer—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Wednesday 19 October 2016

Roads and Maritime Services does not generally send out additional registration papers to customers who have paid online through Service NSW. The customer normally receives an online receipt.

However, there are circumstances when Roads and Maritime posts updated registration papers to customers. An example of this is when a customer elects a shorter period of registration online than the default 12 months. In these cases, a second certificate of registration is posted to the customer with the updated period of registration.

This is not a new process

What process has the Government undertaken to ensure that investors that are interested in the Newcastle East End site are aware of the Government's commitment to lower heights limits than are currently zoned for this area?

Answer—

Keeping heights in line with the master plan

UrbanGrowth NSW and The GPT Group have been clear in all public statements and in the EOI documentation (which includes the Expressions of Interest conditions, returnable schedules and the Information Memorandum), that the vendors will not support any increase in height to what was approved by the Joint Regional Planning Panel (JRPP).

One of the key sales terms in the EOI states that, "The Purchaser is restricted from increasing the height of the proposed buildings in accordance with the DA approved master plan".

Respondents will also be evaluated on their response to compliance with the height restrictions as set out in the DA approved master plan and their understanding of the Newcastle LEP and DCP and the Newcastle Urban Renewal Strategy and how the Respondent's vision complies with the objectives of these documents.

Newcastle City Council is the consent authority for future DAs, and the master plan approved by council allows for heights of up to ~ RL40.

Gateway determination for height building controls in CBD

On 14 September 2016, it was determined under Section 56(2) of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 that an amendment to the Newcastle Local Environmental Plan (LEP) 2012 to amend the Height of Building maps for certain land in the Newcastle City Centre proceed to Gateway, subject to conditions.

The proposal would see changes to the Newcastle LEP that reduce maximum height limits of the proposed towers by up to five storeys, acting to ensure the future development is kept in line with the UrbanGrowth NSW and The GPT Group concept plan, and any other future development in the area.
