An essential part of the infrastructure will be comparable telecommunications to the city. With older people working longer to maintain lifestyle considerations in part time work affordable and accessible internet. As it stands, it is decidedly discriminatory as far as costs and speeds necessary to run a business efficiently. Unless these considerations are met there will be more people remaining in the cities to operate their businesses because of basic telecommunications infrastructure deficits. Emergency Departments need to be added to existing private hospitals to accommodate aging populations. Some current medications need to be administered inside a defined window period to maximise outcomes to the patient. Travelling an hour or more to an emergency department could be detrimental for many aging persons.
