QUESTION 1.

The Hon. WES FANG: Has it been certified?

Response:

Upon discussion with the Australian technology supplier, we have been informed that non-structural panels and materials are already supplied onto the market. There are pre-orders in place for structural components that are currently undergoing testing by relevant authorities including the CSIRO and NATA approved laboratories to complete certification requirements. These are expected to be completed shortly.

Regarding our international partners, structural components are certified for their regional standard and sold in their marketplaces. If the business case exists, we will explore the process for mutual recognition or local testing as required.
